

THE PRESIDENT

Makes Suggestions to the Fifty-Second Congress.

On the Tariff He Accepts the Verdict of November.

And the Responsibility Is Left With the Next Congress.

Hourly Indorsement of the Nicaragua Canal Project.

Workmen Should Have More Than Life's Necessaries.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7. The president's message to Congress today was a masterpiece of brevity and directness. He accepted the verdict of the November election on the tariff, and left the responsibility for the next Congress. He also made suggestions on the Nicaragua canal project, the workmen's question, and the tariff.

The president's message was a masterpiece of brevity and directness. He accepted the verdict of the November election on the tariff, and left the responsibility for the next Congress. He also made suggestions on the Nicaragua canal project, the workmen's question, and the tariff.

On the tariff, the president accepted the verdict of the November election. He said that the tariff was a subject of great importance, and that the people had spoken clearly in the election. He left the responsibility for the next Congress.

On the Nicaragua canal project, the president made suggestions. He said that the project was of great importance, and that it should be completed as soon as possible. He also made suggestions on the workmen's question, and the tariff.

On the workmen's question, the president made suggestions. He said that workmen should have more than life's necessities. He also made suggestions on the tariff, and the Nicaragua canal project.

The Lock and Dam.
There are some interesting points connected with the dam to be put in the river at this place, among which may be noticed the fact that it will be the first needle dam constructed in the United States and it will be the highest needle dam in the world by two feet.
France leads the countries of the world in the improvement of waterways, and this style of dam is used extensively there and considered one of the best types, if not the best. Eng. B. F. Thomas has made a close study of French works on the subject of dams for a few years past and has quite a valuable collection of these works translated by the Messrs. Watt, while in his employ.
A full-sized model of one section of the dam to be put in here is now being made on the grounds, under Mr. Thomas' supervision.
When the style of dam was changed it necessitated some undoing and changing of the work already done. As the dam is to be lower than that first provided for, three courses of the lock walls have been taken off. The dam is now to be put across at the lower instead of the upper end, which necessitates removing the abutment put in on this side of the river.
The height of dam adopted will require one every eight miles in this river.
We cannot reasonably hope for a final appropriation from the present session of Congress, as it is not customary to make any such allowances at the short term. If the Senators and Representatives of our West Virginia brethren had done their duty in this matter at the first session, we would have had the full amount. They have as much at stake as our side of the river, but they sacrificed the Big Sandy for the Kanawha.
A Chance for a Small Investment.
Out of the abandoned gas well at this place there is a flow of strong salt water sufficient to be extracted to produce from 50 to 75 barrels of salt per day. The water has been analyzed and found to be of great strength and excellent quality. There is good reason to believe that the well would pay handsomely. It would probably cost between $1,000 and $1,500 to run the necessary plant in working order, and if it could be run for day would pay for itself in a few months.
If you are looking for a small investment for a small company and would be a valuable addition to the town's industries. Who will take the matter in hand?
Razors in De Air.
The colored folks had a festival Saturday night and several of the "chaps" went on the warpath. The town officers called a halt and when the march was resumed it was in the direction of the lock-up. Here they stacked arms and went into quarters until Tuesday, when a skirmish with six good citizens took place, in which the blacks were considerably worsted. John Wallace was the most seriously disabled, as he will be laid up about seven months in consequence of the last engagement. Miles Goble, Ham Allison and Albert Shannon were also given something by which to remember the occasion.
Notes.—The time of year which more particularly than any other calls for the settlement of all accounts is now here, and in order to be able to settle with our creditors we must have what is due us before January 1st.
We desire to thank our many patrons for their favors of the past year and hope for a continuance.
Respectfully,
S. W. BROS.
